St. Thomas More College & Newman Alumni

Volume 9 Number 2

November 1989

Dr. Jim Penna, interim STM president calls us to rally, to support his challenge

I have been an STM faculty member since 1963 and have witnessed a complete turnover of the faculty and staff other than Fr. Regan, our Alumni Director, who has been at STM since 1962. Nevertheless, assuming the role of Acting President has challenged me to see the College from a new perspective.

I have developed a deeper appreciation of the tremendous efforts of the past principals and presidents of St. Thomas More College. During my time, a period of 33 years at St. Thomas More College, I have personally known Frs. Sullivan, O'Donnell, Swan, Kennedy and Hanrahan. All of these Basilian priests have left their mark on St. Thomas More College. Of course, this is not to deny the many contributions of the other Basilians and religious and lay faculty who staffed the College.

The first major leap forward

Under Fr. Basil Sullivan's principalship and as a result of a Province-wide fundraising drive under his direction, the College made a quantum leap from the little white house to the STM Greystone Building which provided STM faculty and students and Newman Club with a chapel, library, auditorium, offices and a residence for the Basilians.

Fr. O'Donnell made STM a real home for students. From his chunky vegetable soup and coffee, toast and jam breakfasts after morning masses to his Shakespearean genius in the classroom and on the

"The Virgin will conceive and give birth to a Son and they will call Him Immanuel, a name which means "God-is-with-us."

The World

The World has Need of You

If it's ever so small the part you take, The world has need of you.

Be it big or little the effort you make, The world has need of you.

If it's only a thought you give by the way, If it's only love's word you pause to say, It's a part that nobody else can play,

So the world has need of you.

By your smile you can change another's

By a word you can bring peace out of strife:

Then lift your head and never say die; Count every blessing, stop every sigh. Get busy . . . don't let a chance slip by, For the world has need of you.

Evelyn Whitell

Merry Christmas And Happy New Year

We send forth to all of our Alumni and Alumnae fervent prayers, all best wishes and fondest remembrances throughout this coming Christmas season. May this blessed time of the year be filled with special gifts, graces and choicest blessings. The STM Basilian Fathers shall be remembering you in a very special manner in their masses and prayers this Yuletide.

stage as director, he nourished students in body, mind and spirit.

We continue to grow, thrive and flourish

Fr. Peter Swan, a superb administrator for 17 years brought the College into the mainstream of University life by developing the academic program into upper-year courses, faculty expansion, two major building expansions and the opening of the Corporation to the laity. During this period, Professor Ernie McCullough ably served as Interim President for one vear.

Fr. Leonard Rush C.S.B.

Fr. Leonard Kennedy stressed the need to reach out to first-year Catholic students and to find ways to provide outreach to the community. Under his guidance, the College began to establish an endowment fund from the contributed salaries of the Basilians and other religious on faculty, a move which has proven to be farsighted.

With Fr. Jim Hanrahan we had a period of quiet consolidation, student growth and prayerful leadership from a man of God who always had an open door.

Fr. Basil Sullivan C.S.B.

We must change with the times

With this strong tradition of Basilian leadership, it was with some apprehension and humility that I took on the task of Acting President. The uncertainties facing students, the changing educational climate and difficult economic times that the Province is facing have presented many challenges to St. Thomas More College.

Although our work load continues because of peak enrollments in the University, funding has not kept pace with our needs over a number of years. We have, however, been good stewards of our resources, maintaining a high level of services to our students which includes the Chelsea program, an integrated approach for first-year students. Our faculty members perform at an extraordinary level. Uppermost, they strive and have achieved excellence in teaching. They have authored many scholarly publications including the "Chesterton Review," edited by Fr. lan Boyd, the "Canadian Catholic Review" edited by Fr. Dan Callam, and the publication of the "Anglin Historical Collection Guide" by Margaret Sanche. Dr. John Thompson was seconded by the University's Issues and Options Committee to work on a major study on learning at the University of Saskatchewan. All this has been possible because of the commitment of our faculty and staff and the excellent work by Mr. Bob Lemke, our Controller who has been able to effect economies and manage our resources wisely.

We were particularly graced by the initiative and personal sacrifice by Mr. Al Gerwing who spearheaded the highly successful Thomas More Conference at St. Thomas More College last Spring. It brought together some outstanding speakers and provided a stimulating forum for discussion by many people from different walks of life.

Fr. Peter Swan C.S.B.

We ask our alumni to assess new problems

Despite the tight funding and the heavy demands we launched into the present year with renewed hope buoyed by the enthusiastic responses and participation of Corporation members at the Annual Meeting held at the end of September, 1989.

The format for the day included an open discussion in the morning followed by Mass, with the Corporation meeting in the afternoon. In the evening, a banquet in honour of Fr. Hanrahan was held in Marquis Hall with a number of dignitaries present. An academic Mass was held the follow ing Sunday morning.

Fr. Leonard Kennedy, C.S.B.

The morning discussion was especially stimulating and fruitful. A number of Corporation members had been asking for such an open discussion. We had a guest panel consisting of Lois Brockman, Bernard Daley, Peter Dielschneider, Wendelin Herle, Mike Maher and Ida Warren. We then formed small discussion groups. Everything was recorded and will be considered by the Strategic Planning Committee. The quality of the contributions by the panelists and of the discussion groups was excellent and demonstrated a keen interest and hope for the future of St. Thomas More College by providing many fruitful ideas and recommendations. The Corporation meeting discussed and approved a major report on chaplaincy which will focus our efforts in this ever growing dimension of our College.

Among the recommendations coming from the morning discussion and the Corporation meeting was the need to involve our Alumni more in the ongoing development and work of the College. This was also the sense that I received at an STM-Newman Alumni reunion meeting late in August in Ottawa. Thanks to the work and hospitality of Bernard and Mae Daley, 19 alumni (regrets from a number of others) came together for an evening. My wife Marion and I thoroughly enjoyed the evening both renewing old acquaintances and meeting Alumni from earlier years.

A high level of interest was expressed in assisting the College. We promised we would get back to them. We are presently considering ways of enabling our Alumni to contribute back to the College for what they have received and to help College students in the future.

Please do come to our aid

We will need to develop a financial program to guarantee the continued flourishing of the College. Among other things, this will mean that we pursue the development of the endowment fund already started by the Basilian Fathers and other religious faculty contributions. We owe a great deal to the Basilians, but we, the laity, must assume our responsibility to guarantee a future for Catholic higher education. We have been its beneficiaries and we owe it to our church and to our students to guarantee its future.

In the meantime, the University of Saskatchewan is involved in a campaign to reach out to all the Alumni of the University which, of course, includes STM-Newman Alumni. At this time, we are still discussing the nature of our involvement in the general University campaign. When you are contacted by the University, you may well want to indicate that you wish to support STM and have your donation so designated.

Each one of you is all important

You have also received a letter on behalf of the John Stack Memorial Lectures in Ethics. Early response to this appeal has been good. I would like to encourage you to consider this worthy project since there is such an urgent need for leadership and critical reflection on the many ethical issues confronting our society.

Lastly, and by no means the least, I want to express my appreciation to everyone for the support that I personally have received. You, our Alumni and friends of the College, are remembered daily in our community prayers both at Mass and during the Litany of the Hours in Chapel. We ask you also to remember the College, its faculty, staff and students in your prayers.

The dramatic production of "The Dragon" promises to be an all-excelling one

After a much lamented gap of one year, Newman Drama is opening a new season with the production of The Dragon by the modern Russian playwright, Eugene Schwarz, under the guidance of Professor Elena Corrigan of the STM English Department. This play has been chosen for two major reasons. First, Newman Drama wishes to host a production through which it will be able to reach the primary, junior and high schools of Saskatoon and environs, and to remind students of these school ages that there is a university college in Saskatoon, founded as a result of the aspirations of the Catholic community, a liberal arts college which is open to them upon graduation from high school in a spirit of friendship and adventure.

"The Dragon" subtly teaches lessons to us all

Second, once it had been agreed that the play to be chosen should be suitable for children, the play, The Dragon, attracted the students in Newman Drama because of its subtle combination of fantasy and satire, magic and realism. Eugene Schwarz was a playwright of the Soviet era who directed his attention to children's theatre because the truth in Russia was such that it could only be told to children under the allegorical guise of the contest between knights, dragons and burgomasters. Even so, the play was immediately banned after its first performance in 1942 and was not performed in Russia until the recent years of Glasnost.

This play appeals to both the young and also to adults

Strictly speaking, it is a play for a mature audience, for its main subject is a change in the consciousness of the people brought about by the necessity of living under totalitarian regime. Amid a profusion of lies, double-thinking, double-language, double-values emerge. The play is not by any means, however, a grim vision of the kind we find in Orwell's 1984, because the insistence upon imagination, generosity, courage and the search for goodness awake in adults a childlike quality of vision which can look upon suffering with hope and upon grief with faith. It is said of Schwarz that he was a magician who awakened maturity in children and childhood in adults. The Newman production will strive to capture this quality, and it extends an invitation to Alumni and their children to share in and to support this venture. The Dragon is scheduled provisionally for the third week in January.

Our Drama Department promises more rewards to come

In addition, Newman Dama proposes a series of drama, prose and poetry evenings later in the year. A Victorian Evening (in full dress for all participants) at the end of February (following St. Valentine's Day) with a specific invitation to high school students, and A Poetry Evening for STM English Department students in particular, at Eastertime. For the future, Newman Drama intends to develop a vibrant theatre for both children and adults. Alumni participation is always welcome.

Committee announces names of scholarship and bursary recipients

Claude Lang, assistant to the president, has announced the award of a number of scholarships and bursaries by the STM Scholarship Committee. These include three new entrance bursaries of $500 each funded by the Saskatoon Chapter of the Knights of Columbus, and the first annual scholarship from the Henry J. Brockman Fund, valued at 75% of tuition ($1,008). The recipients of the Knights of Columbus Bursaries are Molissa Keller and Mark Meier of Saskatoon and Darold Sturgeon of Moose Jaw. The first recipient of the Brockman scholarship, awarded to STM students taking courses in developmental psychology and philosophy, is Susan Angelstad of Humboldt.

In the meantime, the John and Elizabeth Kaufmann Memorial Scholarship of $200 was awarded to John R. MacDonald of Warman, a fourth year honours student in Religious Studies, while Carr Foundation Scholarships of $200 each for students in Religious Studies were awarded to John R. MacDonald, Marilyn Hansen of Saskatoon and Vincent Saretsky of Humboldt.

More students reap rewards and honours

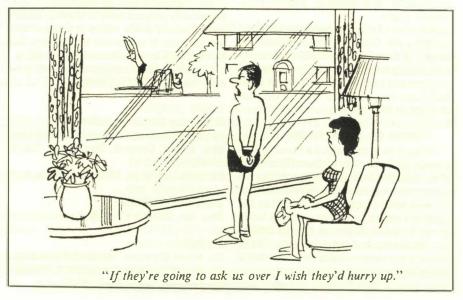

The Scholarships Committee also designated three students as Christopher Dawson Scholars: Todd Yakimoski of Saskatoon, Gwendolyn Schmidt of Leader and Karen Zypchyn of Regina. Such designation carries an award of $400. Named after the famous historian of the Middle Ages and the church, the program fosters the study of Christian culture at St. Thomas More College.

In addition, 20 students will receive STM Entrance Scholarships of $150.

These have been funded by a variety of donors, including the Basilian Fathers, the STM Faculty Union and a bequest left from the estate of Victor Draftenza of Yorkton.

Asked if he had any comments, Mr. Lang noted that the Committee had reviewed the files of many students worthy of scholarships and bursaries, and that he hopes the College will be able to add to its scholarship funds in the future.

Please do remember in your prayers our deceased alumni and alumnae. During the month of November, masses will be offered up in St. Thomas More College chapel for them. We pray too that we have missed no one in our listing. If so, please do inform us.

Keenan lecturer issues challenge to STM College

Catholic colleges must be prepared to dare life and to dare the future. This challenge was the highlight of the third annual Keenan Lecture, delivered on October 29 by Sister Kathleen Feeley, SSND, President of Notre Dame College of Mary-

Standing before an audience of 140

Michael G. Keenan

gathered in the STM auditorium, Sister Feeley spoke on the topic "Creating the Future in Catholic Liberal Arts Colleges," dealing with the question of how colleges adapt to changing times. Four elements are key to creating the future for colleges: history, physical reality, providence and choice. Although Catholic colleges have a level of confidence which only belief in divine providence can give, it is in the area of choice that they have control over their future.

Focus must be on the whole person

Catholic colleges have changed dramatically in the last few decades. Faculties and boards of directors which were once composed of members of the religious orders have become predominantly lay. Yet the mission of Catholic colleges has not changed; the mission is to provide a liberal arts education. "We are working to free and liberate minds . . . " or, in the words of John Henry Newman, to produce "a cultivated intellect . . . which brings with it a power and a grace to every work and every occupation which it undertakes."

But what does it mean to be a Catholic liberal arts college? The role of the Catholic college, according to Sister Feeley, is not to proselytize, not to subtract something from a liberal education by narrowing it, not to exclude certain ideas or individuals. Catholic liberal arts colleges are church related but not sectarian. They bring a plus to education and not a minus; they add an extra dimension to education.

There are four ways, Sister Feeley continued, by which Catholic colleges can develop this extra dimension and strengthen their identity. They can work together to build a sense of community among administration, faculty and students which will be a shining example to others. Second, they can develop a strong theology or religious studies department which will break down walls against the life of the spirit. Third, they can foster a broadly based campus ministry program. Finally they can reach outside their walls with programs oriented to the community at large.

Mindful of this added dimension, Catholic colleges can dare face the 1990s. The new decade, according to Sister Feeley. calls us to develop a curriculum and campus life which are international, interactive and intergenerational: international in developing a world vision; intra-active in involving students in the learning process; and intergenerational in opening doors to students who are older than the traditional college age, and in enabling young and old to learn from one another.

Sister Feeley's visit to St. Thomas More College included a second talk on "FLannery O'Connor: Territory and Technique," and an informal meeting with the Faculty Administration Forum to discuss strategic planning for the future of the college. Her lectures and comments were received enthusiastically by each audience she ad-
